FinTwit Favorites

Wednesday, I asked readers to submit their favorite Finance Twitter (FinTwit) follows. I received > 500 separate suggestions. Thank you! For the sake of sanity and noise reduction, I filtered by most popular and most relevant and sorted into categories. Any handle suggested by at least two people was included.

Some respondents said they don't have a Twitter account. You don't need one to get the benefits of Twitter. Just use SOCI and TWTR on Bloomberg to follow a selection of accounts. Twitter is badly organized and filled with spam but there is just enough gold to make it worthwhile.

I broke the results down into a series of lists. There is overlap between the lists because a vol expert might also be macro, etc. The lists are highly subjective and the information is not perfectly accurate or error-free. Crypto responses were fairly limited so I'm sure that list could use some work. Appendix A is a complete list of every handle that got at least two votes.

I will start with the AM/FX Power 20, the most-loved Twitter follows according to AM/FX readers:

The AM/FX FinTwit Power 20
